

Stability of singlet and triplet trions in carbon nanotubes

Troels F. Rønnow, Aalborg

Abstract: We investigate singlet and triplet trion states in semiconducting carbon nanotubes using a one-dimensional model. It is concluded that singlet trion states bind up to 13.6% stronger than exciton states, and that they lower the optical transition energy with up to 50% of the tight binding band gap energy.